- | | | |
|-------|---|---|
| 09:00 | Meeting at starting points, Walking individually or in small teams, applying and testing the different methodologies of creating knowledge in a designerly way | Instead of dividing the symposium in a majority of passive attendants and a minority of active speakers, everyone will be a contributing participant of the symposium. For this purpose, the core of the symposium will take place "in the field": All participants will walk in one of six different areas of Hanover's urban landscapes. The aim is: Testing new ideas for designing urban landscapes through concrete design research experiments for Hanover's urban landscapes. |
| 15:00 | Reception at outside foyer Herrenhausen Palace | |
| 15:30 | Designing a pop-up-meshwork (Festsaal)
Support: Marcel Hiller, artist and curator | In the afternoon after their arrival at Herrenhausen Palace the participants will present their findings in a pop-up meshwork – either individually or in self-defined teams.
An meshwork framework provides blank spaces to be filled by contributions of individuals or small teams. Types of representation will not be defined and can range from images to performed walking rhythms, stories or plays etc. The collective exhibition will provide the base for further discussions and reflections on day three. |
| 18:00 | Meshwork opening | |
